About the IAIS Museum

IAIS preserves and educates through discovery and creativity the diverse traditions, vitality and knowledge of Native American cultures.

Incorporated in 1975, IAIS was an outgrowth of local efforts to recover New England's then largely unknown indigenous history. Co-founders Edmund "Ned" Swigart and Sidney Hessel, along with volunteers, dug in and around the Washington, CT area—finding evidence of extensive Native settlements. These archaeological discoveries found a new home in the building formerly known as the American Indian Archaeological Institute.

Today, IAIS draws visitors, researchers and students from across Connecticut, as well as New York, Massachusetts, and Europe to experience its extensive collection of Native American cultural items from across the United States. IAIS also offers engaging education programs for individuals of all ages, weekend programs and annual events to celebrate Native American heritage.

About the LHAC

Founded in 2007 by Dr. Lucianne Lavin, Director of IAIS Research & Collections, Emeritus, LHAC is a hands-on group operating with IAIS and affiliated with the Archaeological Society of Connecticut. It is a great way to join fellow teachers, students, professional and avocational archaeologists and everyone with an interest in discovering more about the past. The club offers a setting for exchange of ideas, lectures covering a wide range of archaeology-related topics, and opportunities to participate in local digs.
